Main Theme: “Flavors and Delicacies with Sustainability”

Food to feed more than 8,100,000 people taking care of sustainability.

- Subthemes: a) Production
b) Processing
c) Consumption
d) Disposal

Having enough food for everybody involves many activities that affect the environment. You can analyze it in a local or a global way, reviewing natural and technological ways of producing, transporting, processing, and eliminating garbage, and you should think about culture, tradition, and innovation.

It would be great if, as part of your research and presentation, you include some of the objectives of the 17 UNITED NATIONS GOALS FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT, because all of them are related to our Conference’s theme. <https://sdgs.un.org/goals>

Your work and research: As with all previous conferences, we hope to have teams from many countries. We expect a maximum of five students in each team, with a responsible teacher.

Each team will have to prepare a poster, to show its 10-minute presentation to other teams, to participate in the cultural night (one presentation by country), to bring stuff for the fun market, to be ready to make debates, to learn a lot from some conferences and to enjoy some beautiful places we will visit.

We will have more details to guide your research in our page, in Newsletter two and in our Pre-conference.

Pre-conference: On Saturday 1st March 2025, we would like to have a 3-hour pre-conference developing three aspects of the 2025 CEI Mexico Conference:

- A) Presentation of experts in a talk about food and sustainability.
- B) Guides to develop your Project.
- C) Advice and ideas to travel in our beautiful Mexico before or after the Conference.

The pre-conference will begin at 6 am in Mexico City. If you want to know at what time it is in your city, you can visit:

Visiting Mexico: We know that many participants of the CEI Conference want to visit some places in Mexico, which is a big and beautiful country with different regions. As time goes by very quickly and travelling is not easy, we include some information in this first Newsletter.

First, we suggest you spend three or four days more to know Mexico City, because it has a lot of places, museums, buildings, monuments, parks, and attractions to visit. You can do it before or after the Conference. Although the Real del Sur Hotel is far away from the City Center, it may be a good place to rest as you can take The Metro and go easily to the most interesting places. We can help you with the organization if you want, and we will share more information in the Pre-Conference.

To spend more days in Mexico, you may be interested in visiting the Mayan zone, The Colonial Cities at the center of the country, The Pacific Coast, or many other interesting places. Certainly, you can find a travel agency in your country to organize your journey, but if you want some local advice, we suggest you contact our travel agent. She has always been very efficient organizing our flights and routes, so here we share her mail with you, and do not hesitate to write to her:
